Collection Overview

Repository: Chester County History Center
Title: Historic American Buildings Surveys for Chester County, Pennsylvania
Date: 1958 - 1960
Extent: 26 Binders; 6 linear feet
Creators: Goode, Edmund Whitely; Goode, Lila Wright Graves
Language: The collection is in English.
Summary: The Historic American Buildings Surveys for Chester County, Pennsylvania measures 6 linear feet and dates from 1958 to 1960. Found within the collection are 26 binders containing survey notes and photographs of public and residential structures from 34 townships within Chester County. These buildings include historic homes, farmhouses, barns, mills, furnaces, churches, meeting houses, schoolhouses, stores, hotels, taverns, railroad stations, and courthouses.

Administrative Information

Acquisition Information

The collection was donated by Edmund Whitely "Ned" Goode in 1971.

Related Material

The Library of Congress holds a duplicate copy of photographs and survey notes, which have been digitized and are available on their website: <https://www.loc.gov/collections/historic-american-buildings-landscapes-and-engineering-records/?fa=location:pennsylvania%7Clocation:chester+county>

The CCHC Photo Archives also holds additional Ned Goode collections, including West Chester borough views and HABS photographs and documentation of architectural buildings in New Hampshire and Vermont.

Processing Information

In 2001, Roger Rodney inventoried the collection and an index was created by Lois Bassett. That same year, Linda Thomas, Bethany Coldiron, and Dolly Newport typed the photographic descriptions that were filed within the binders. In 2022, Mary Painter transcribed the photograph descriptions into a photo inventory and a finding aid was prepared by Richard McKinstry in 2023.

Institutional and Biographical Note

The Historic American Buildings Survey was America's first federal preservation program, having been established by an act of Congress in 1933 as a division of the National Park Service to document America's architectural heritage. At this time, other preservation initiatives were forming, including the restoration of the colonial capital at Williamsburg, Virginia, and the National Park Service's development of its historic parks and sites program.

Architects interested in the colonial era had already produced drawings and photographs of historic architecture, but usually only as a result of local or regional interest and ending before the Victorian time period. It was thought that the documentation of America's architectural heritage should be national in scope. An agreement among the American Institute of Architects, the Library of Congress, and the National Park Service recognized the need for a "comprehensive and continuous national survey is the logical concern of the Federal Government." As a national survey, the records of the Historic American Buildings Survey, now housed at the Library of Congress, represents an ongoing catalogue raisonné of American architecture, builder's art, and regional building styles.

In 1958, Edmund Whitely "Ned" Goode and Lila Wright Graves Goode were selected to provide photographic documentation for a selection of historic buildings in Chester County. Ned Goode was born in Milwaukee, Wisconsin in 1921, the son of Frederick Dickerson Goode (1885-1957) and Dorothy Whitley Goode (1889-1970). He grew up in Newton, Massachusetts, graduated from high school in 1939, and spent a year working with freelance photographer Chester T. Holbrook. In 1951, Goode married Lila Wright Graves (1915-2003), a native of West Virginia who shared his enthusiasm and talent for photography. Goode served in the United States Air Force during World War II at Eglin Air Field in Florida, attaining the rank of staff sergeant. He was a member of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Disabled American Veterans.

After the war, Goode moved to Philadelphia and was a photographer for the Curtis Publishing Company, the publisher of The Saturday Evening Post. He then came to West Chester, Pennsylvania where he was a commercial photographer from 1949 to 1961; he then worked in nearby Paoli into the late 1960s. Goode did mostly industrial and commercial photography for such local companies as National Foam Systems, Wind Turbine, and Pepperidge Farm, taking photographs of their products and documenting company operations. In addition, he provided public relations work for local Chester County organizations, photographed auto accidents for the county court, and worked as a wedding photographer. Goode was also active in the West Chester Camera Club, serving as its president for a number of years.

Goode's skill in architectural photography is highlighted in his work for the Historic American Buildings Survey (HABS). Goode, together with his wife Lila, not only photographed sites in Chester County for HABS, but also documented other Pennsylvania county sites, as well as sites in New Hampshire and Vermont.

Goode eventually moved to Warsaw, Missouri and died on March 14, 1986 at the Lincoln Community Nursing Home in Lincoln, Missouri. He was survived by his spouse, Lila, a step-child and step-grandchildren, and two sisters, both of whom lived in Manhattan Beach, California.

Scope and Content Note

The Chester County Historic American Buildings Survey Photograph collection measures 6 linear feet and dates from 1958 to 1960. Found within the collection are 26 binders containing survey notes and photographs, both interior and exterior, of public and residential structures from 34 townships and boroughs within Chester County, Pennsylvania.

In 1958, the Eastern Office of Design and Construction, a division of the U.S. National Park Service, selected Chester County as a HABS demonstration area due to its active Historical Society (now known as the Chester County History Center). Founded in 1893, the Society's collection of manuscripts, objects, and photographic materials, combined with staff and membership expertise of local history, provided readily available research on local building structures. As a result, the Society was asked to select 100 structures of interest throughout the county, with site selections weighing in favor of early colonial structures or structures in danger of destruction.

While northern and western townships such as Warwick, East Nantmeal, and East Nottingham are represented, the majority of townships and boroughs are located in central, southern, and eastern parts of the county. The county seat, West Chester borough, includes 19 sites, and the surrounding townships of East Whiteland, East Bradford, West Bradford, and West Goshen add 22 neighboring sites.

The Goodes were then selected to provide photographic documentation through a series of three separate contracts beginning in 1958. Historic and architectural survey descriptions were provided gratis by the Society under the direction of Curator Bart Anderson, with additional help from James C. Sorber and Olive Cadbury (Mrs. Richard Cadbury).

The collection is arranged alphabetically by township, and the historic buildings include homes, farmhouses, barns, mills, furnaces, churches, meeting houses, schoolhouses, stores, hotels, taverns, railroad stations, and courthouses (see Index to Volumes for a complete list of townships, boroughs, and structures). Although original survey photographs date from 1958 to 1960, photographic captions submitted to the Library of Congress indicate some photographs may have been printed and/or described post-1960.

Survey data pages record structural data on forms supplied by the U.S. Department of the Interior and include historic and common structure names; a complete address or location for rural sites; date(s) of construction; known architects; a description of architectural significance and style; construction materials; structural shape/dimensions; exterior/interior features of note; major alterations or additions; current usage; and citations for sources of information used on the form. Of the sites selected, over 25 have been subsequently been added to the National Registry of Historic Places.

15. Brinton 1704 House, Oakland Road, Dilworthtown, Birmingham Township, Delaware County, PA.
16. Basement kitchen, candle niche. These openings are common in the cellars of the houses in Chester and Delaware Counties, PA.
17. Brinton 1704 House, Oakland Road, Dilworthtown, Birmingham Township, Delaware County, PA Basement kitchen, bake oven. Close up of entrance, which is original. There is no flue, the opening itself being left open while oven was being heated. The "hive" is reconstructed from well-defined marks.
18. Brinton 1704 House, Oakland Road, Dilworthtown, Birmingham Township, Delaware County, PA. South front, cellar window. Original frame was found in place showing rabbeting for the leaded sash, nail holes where each was tacked to the frame and with most of the stiffening bars in place. Framing of the transom over front entrance door was marked in the same manner, and pieces of glass have been found which fit into the pattern made by lines drawn from the nail holes in the rabbeting.
19. Brinton 1704 House, Oakland Road, Dilworthtown, Birmingham Township, Delaware County, PA Copy of photo of an oil painting by Thomas Eakins done 1878 from traditional description. Original now in possession of family of Judge Jasper Brinton, Cairo, Egypt. Size probably ca 12" by 15".
