HONORING

PEOPLE IN MEDICINE

Chester County holds a distinguished place in the medical history of the United States, contributing unique advances and figures to our nation's healthcare evolution. The county was home to early forms of medical care and public health initiatives, which mirrored and contributed to the flourishing medical infrastructure of the nation. The establishment of the Chester County Hospital in 1892, as the first hospital in the county, marked a significant milestone, providing a foundation for advanced medical care and research that would parallel the country's growing emphasis on healthcare accessibility and innovation.

In the broader context of American medical history, Chester County's contributions extend beyond institutional developments to include pioneering figures in medicine and public health, who have impacted both local and national medical practices. The Chester County History Center is honored to recognize People in Medicine in Chester County by celebrating the life, accomplishments, and service of Dr. Ann Preston, Dr. Diana Kane, and Mr. and Mrs. Franny Abbott.
